

PACKET #3- THE FINAL COUNTDOWN...

Dear families, here we are AGAIN! I hope this final packet finds you all hanging on, safe and healthy. This has been a trying time for sure and I know you all are doing your very best. By the time you receive this, we will be in our final 30 calendar days of school! WOW!

Back to Packet #3- I have included work that students should be able to do independently. They may need some guidance on directions but that is all. I have simplified the reading, by not sending home books this time, but shorter passages they can do more with. I have also included less work overall, as the year is winding down, but I hope that will allow time to work on some of the practice sites we offer- Reading A-Z, DreamScape, Prodigy or MobyMax. So, even though there is less 'paper work' there is still plenty that can be done online. If you are unable to access any of the online programs, please let any of your teachers know through email or Remind. I check this often as it relates to many students' IEP goals.

All of the teachers created a calendar to help keep the kids organized- remind them they only do the math and reading attached here (not what's in the calendar) but the rest they can follow. We truly hope this will help you!. If you have any questions, please reach out to me. Don't wait until the last minute and add more stress to your lives! :)

Here is your Final To-Do list: Please work steadily so that this packet is turned in on time. Teachers will have to collect, sort, grade and complete final grade cards very quickly so having your work done on time leads to an accurate final grade card. :)

1. Reading-

- The packet begins with Ben's Big Problem, Week 1. The first four pages are all using the same vocabulary words (definitions are on the back page for you).
- There are a few other extra practice pages as well, that should be review.
- Use any extra time on Reading A-Z or DreamScape.

2. Math- You may start where you want, doing approximately one page per day. Spend any extra time on Prodigy or Moby Max.

3. When you get to science or social studies, you can use the website to have it read to you. 5th grade- don't forget about the Wax Museum!

4. DreamScape- do some every day. Your login information is attached, just in case. It is similar to Prodigy and you can play against classmates. Check it out. :)
5. Specials: Don't forget about them!
6. Non-school things you can do... Get outside, get some rest, bust out some board games, listen to books read aloud online, help make meals, help clean up your spaces at home, keep your body moving! Hopefully, the weather will cooperate and we can continue to enjoy SPRING!

When you finish the work attached, if possible, have students log into the Reading A-Z website. There are plenty of books they can read- or have read to them- and short questions they can answer. This is excellent practice for them! :)
